New Profs, Staff Among Freshmen

By Cindy Conine

Among the many innovations that are presently being made at Trevecca are the changes and expansions in various areas of the administrative staff and faculty. This August, President Moore announced the addition of two new vice-presidents to the administration, Mr. Harper L. Cole, the Executive Vice-President for Administrative and Financial Affairs, and Mr. Richard E. Felix, appointed Vice-President of Financial Development.

Mr. Cole has been Professor of Management at Bethany Nazarene College since 1966, received an A.B. from Bethany in 1965, an M.A. in Management at the University of Oklahoma in 1970, and has just completed course work for the Ed. D. at Oklahoma State University. He has been a minister of Christian Education and pastor in several churches, was assistant to the General Treasurer in Kansas City at the Church of the Nazarene Headquarters, and is an ordained Nazarene elder.

Mr. Felix received his A.B. in 1963 at Olivet Nazarene College, his M.S. from George Williams College in 1970, and a Ph. D. in Educational Administration and Leadership from the University of Notre Dame in 1974. He was an assistant to the President at Bethel College in South Bend, Indiana and has had experience in coaching, teaching, and administration at the college level.

There has also been many additions to the faculty, among them Dr. James R. Caldwell, the new Acting Chairman of the Department of Education and Psychology. Dr. Caldwell received an A.B. from Eastern Nazarene College, an M.A. from Boston University, and a Ph.D. from the University of Southern California. He is experienced in public school and college teaching and administration counseling.

Another welcome addition is the Director of Athletics and Head Basketball Coach, Mr. Elmore W. Vail. He has served at Northwest Nazarene College as baseball and basketball coach, and received his A.B. degree there. Mr. Vail has an M.S. in Physical Education from the University of Idaho and has done graduate work at the University of Oregon. (See interview elsewhere in this edition).

The Fine Arts Department also has a new acting chairman, Mr. Robert J. Howard, replacing Dr. Lawrence Patterson, who recently went to Canadian Nazarene College to teach. Mr. Howard comes to TNC from Asbury College, is a graduate from Eastern Nazarene College, has an M.A. degree from Kent State, and has done graduate work at the University of Kentucky.

As to his impression of Trevecca, Mr. Howard is favorable. "Good — The people are very cordial. The teachers' appear to be competent and professionally active. There is a good spiritual tone to the campus."

We are happy to have Mr. Howard here and feel sure he will be an asset to the Fine Arts Department.

In the Business Department there is Mr. Orton L. Mills, who is on sabbatical leave from the Bendix Corporation. Besides being a teacher in the business department, he is also an advisor in coordinating business records and computer programs at Trevecca. Mr. Mills majored in engineering at Purdue University where he received a B.S. degree and also graduated from Michigan State University where he received an M.B.A. in marketing.

This year many part-time faculty members have been added in various departments. In the religion department, Rev. Edward Cox, pastor of McClurkan Memorial Nazarene Church, will teach a course in Evangelism; Bob Brower will be a teaching assistant in Speech - Communications; and Mrs. Marvyn Bacigalupo will teach courses in Spanish and French. Courses in Play Production and Dramatic Arts will be taught by Mr. Bob Johnston; a course in photography will be taught by Mr. Sam Trent; and Cost Accounting will be taught by Mrs. Deborah Peercy.

Trevecca, as well as TREV-ECHOES, would like to extend a hearty welcome to all these "new additions" and wish them a great first year at TNC!

A look at nature, a look at oneself

by Katie Ray

FALL CREEK FALLS STATE PARK is the sight of this year's ALL-SCHOOL RETREAT, with this in mind, October 4, 5, and 6 should be some of the most exciting days of the upcoming school year.

TREVECCA students: Tim Furgeson, Tom Brower, Brian Allison, and Mike Blankenship, have been working hard to plan some worthwhile activities. A campfire service, film, and a surprise speaker are lined up; also Bob Johnston will be in charge of interesting Serendipity activities.

Saturday afternoon we take off to explore the waterfalls. Don't forget your cameras. There will be quite a few chances to get some fantastic pictures. You might even want to swim in the lake at the bottom of the falls.

Be sure to bring your baseball gloves or whatever, too, because you will want to join in on the hard and fast games of baseball that will be going on in your free time.

The retreat will be climaxed by a Sunday morning communion service, one of the last major activities before our departure on Sunday afternoon.

The title given to the retreat is "INWARD JOURNEY". Mike Blankenship, the man with the plan, said the reason for this was because an inward journey into self is exactly what the planning committee hopes will be accomplished by everyone who attends.

A caravan will be leaving from McClurkan Auditorium Friday afternoon. There will be a one dollar deposit, with the balance to be paid on arrival. Only the first 150 applications will be accepted. For information, maps, or applications see Mike Blankenship.

Is this serendipity?

A tradition

Freshman Initiation

Within the next few days (Friday and Saturday, to be exact) the Freshmen will be experiencing a few things they've never gone through before and probably never will again — Rat Days! A tradition out of Trevecca's past, it is interesting to look back on some of these "fun" activities done in the past, like in October, 1953 . . .

"Shine on; shine on harvest moon," is being hummed; girls are plucking straw out of their hair; boys are rubbing their poor, tired feet; and all you see is green, green, green. What is going on? Why, this is Freshman Recognition Week.

"The whole week has been crammed full with exciting events. Monday morning dawned bright and early on a vividly decorated McClurkan building. One hundred thirty-eight Freshmen were led into chapel by the Sophomore officers while "Pomp and Circumstance" was rendered on the organ. After chapel they were given the extra special privilege of being first in lunch line with their trays being carried by sophomore hosts and hostesses to a special reserved section of the cafeteria. Tuesday morning around 4:00 a.m. lights began flickering all over the campus and sleepy-eyed girls and boys stumbled to the McClurkan building. Here they started on an early morning hike touring, of all places, the graveyard. After the hike the Sophomores served hot coffee and doughnuts to a group of tired Freshmen. Wednesday was set aside for spiritual emphasis. At 7:00 a fine looking group gathered in front of the Administration Building from which they marched to College Hill Church, sitting in a special reserved section for the Freshmen. During the Thursday noon hour, Dale Martin, acting as master of ceremonies, interviewed the Freshmen on the steps of the Administration Building. From all over the campus resounded cheers of Kentucky, Alabama, West Virginia, and all of our other great states of the Southeastern zone.

"It is not over yet, Freshmen. Friday night Freshman talent is being represented in a fine arts program under the theme of "Harvest Moon." And then to climax the week, the Sophomore class combined with the Freshman are going on a hayride at Riverwood Riding Academy. Sounds exciting, doesn't it?"

"We have told you; we have tried to show you; we want you to know, Freshmen. Welcome! Welcome!"

And so we, also, will try to show our welcome to you through our own Rat activities — Glad to have you at Trevecca!

Freshman mixer caps orientation activities at Trevecca College

By Gaye Ervin

No sooner did the Trevecca Class of '78 arrive on campus than were they fully recognized by their upperclassmen. The Freshmen felt right at home beginning Friday, September 6, as they entered Trevecca's gymnasium for the Freshmen mixer — not knowing that by the end of the evening they would feel like they had entered into the Roman coliseum. Before the Freshmen knew anything they were all tied up, searching for their identity, running like little lost lambs headed for the slaughter, and they were all bogged down much to the thanks of Mike Blankenship and the Student Council.

All Freshmen were coupled off at the door with another classmate and tied wrist to wrist with kite string. Trying to get untangled from your partner proved to be a test of moral backbone and good ole' physiological backbone, too.

One thing learned for sure in this experience, the Class of '78 has some great potential gymnasts.

The evening progressed with a contest involving finding students which met specified qualifications, including someone with the same shoe size to finding someone from Florida. When the whistle blew to start the contest each student was in such a hurry, that introductions were forgotten, except those of, "Size 10-B?"

After recuperating, the students were assigned song groups whom they had to find by humming their tune only. "Mary Had a Little Lamb" proved to be the winner here. These new groups only led to more activities. This time foot races were in order (or out of order). Relays proved to involve much more intellect. 50 to 60 students participated in each race.

Through it all "Mary Had a Little Lamb", and her group were the winners with the highest score. The fast-moving pace of the evening took on a new light when Dean

Lewis shared with the class the secret and joy of sharing the Light of Jesus Christ with our fellow students. Each student lighted a friends candle with the flame of his own candle, signifying the spreading of the Truth. This proved to be the first step for many students in their Christian experience at Trevecca.

Upon leaving the gym with a sense of belonging, the Freshmen found their shoes all in one BIG pile in the middle of the floor, one more step in the climb to Freshman recognition. To help the students regain anything they lost, particularly energy, free cokes were available to all those in need.

Now while walking across campus you can hear a shout, "Hey! Hey! You're the girl with brown eyes!" Or, "You're the one who found my shoe!" Truly this first step in becoming a full-fledged Freshman is memorable, thanks to STUCO and all those who participated. Now each Freshman moves with a new found sense of fear within his heart.

Frosh ties are not easily broken.

Opening convention uplifts year spiritually

By Barry Kolp

On Sept. 9-12, the Trevecca College community gathered for a series of special services called the Opening Convention. Morning services were held in the college chapel. College Hill Church of the Nazarene was the site of the evening meetings.

The new school year began in an uplifting spiritual atmosphere as a result of the Convention. Many students found their faith strengthened by the challenging messages of Dr. Jarrell Garsee, the main speaker.

Dr. Garsee has served the Church in various capacities. He has served as a pastor, a missionary to Samoa, and an instructor in psychology at Mount Vernon Nazarene College. Dr. Garsee is presently Dean of Men at MVNC.

Ron Dalton, Director of Religious Affairs, said there was an outstanding student response to these meetings. Most of the student body attended the first two morning services. About 225-250 people were present in the evenings.

Paul Cleckner and Bob Johnston shared in a special event with 125 students on Wednesday morning. The All-School Prayer Meeting, led by Toby Williams, was held on Wednesday night in conjunction with the Opening Convention.

If funds are available, the Opening Convention will be an annual event at TNC.

Last year's Religious Affairs Council worked with the current Council in planning the convention.

Computer registration for TNC?

By Tommy Sellers

Registration - the first big hassle to greet you after a long deserved summer vacation.

On the 16th of September, a debriefing meeting on fall registration was held to determine whether improvements could be made on the registration processes; also, whether or not the processes would or would not be computerized.

It seems that this process would be right around the corner for Trevecca merely because of Professor Mills and Mr. Harper Cole's presence on our campus. Professor Mills is here on leave from the Bendix Corporation and is a Systems Analyst on computers, so he is very qualified to be involved with this process. Also, Mr. Cole has had extensive background with computer systems, most recently with Bethony Nazarene College's registration for the past eight years.

In August, before registration was officially underway, Mr. Powers, who is related to the Data Processing Curriculum of the Volunteer State College Gallatin, was approached with the idea of computer registration, from a member of our faculty. They presently use a computer in their registration, and we may be able to incorporate their ideas with our needs. Also, we were notified of a Terminal Company in Cleveland, Ohio who also does computer registrations.

At the debriefing meeting Monday, Sept. 16, four students were questioned on how they thought the registration process went. They all were heard to have said it was the "best registration" they had experienced here and was "much smoother than those in the past." This could be because of the space factor this year, the way it was transferred from the Library to the Science and Administration buildings. Next quarter there may be changes, but no major changes will be made this year. So, computers are out of the question, for at least a year.

A New Monstrosity or ... What?

Although Benson Hall, a new facility for 276 students, is still under construction. Most of the male campus population lives in this dorm; many say they are generally happy with their new home.

Freshman elections held

By Gaye Ervin

Choosing responsible representatives in government has always presented a challenge to the people being represented. Trevecca is no exception in this case, as the Class of '78 began choosing their officers for the year of '74 and '75. These should be students who are willing to represent the entire class without bias, and maintaining the highly valued Christian standards of Trevecca throughout his term in office.

The offices of President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer, and two STUCO representatives are open to each class. The candidates decide which office they would best fill and then begin their work by filling a petition with signatures from 10% of their class, which supports their nomination to office. Each petition was reviewed, and a breakfast was held involving the candidates and the Administrative Advisory Board.

Each candidate was allowed to campaign actively with posters beginning 8:00 a.m. Wednesday morning, September 18 until 5:00 p.m. Friday afternoon, September 20. Campaigns have always proven to be colorful and eventful, and the Class of '78 maintains this image.

Mike Blankenship, ASB President said, "There's more spirit in the Freshman Class than there's been in any class in a long time." The validity of this statement will be tested and reported in the next issue of Trev-Echoes when the results of the Freshman elections are known.

Poet of Tumblin' Creek Visits in chapel

Who is Pek Gunn? According to a little switchboard operator on campus, "It's something in Tennessee. Oh, I can't explain it. But he's supposed to be AWFUL good!"

And he was, just like always, this time being in STUCO chapel Friday, September 13th. Who else could relate the "good life" of Tumblin Creek (located 57 miles west of Nashville) through poetry than an old home-town boy himself?

Although serving as Publicity Director of Pasadena College from 1956-1959 and presently holding the esteemed title of Poet Laureate of Tennessee, he is far from a high-class, aristocratic snob but an old-fashioned country fellow.

We realize that we suffer in our "luxury" through such simple things as breakfast where a waffle is a "pancake with a non-skid tread on it" and "they serve bales of hay for breakfast and call it shredded wheat . . . and eat from cardboard cans." Whatever happened to good old ham and eggs?

And whatever happened to the times when we could say, "I received a lot more than I gave?" Those times are long gone for most of us . . . but for Pek Gunn they live on through his poetry and memories of growing up on the banks of Tumblin Creek.

—Linda Cramer

Uncle "Pek" takes a breather.

TNC to be represented at session

By Kathy White

On September 27 and 28 three representatives of Trevecca's Missionary Fellowship will travel to Kansas City to attend the Nazarene

Student Leadership Conference on Missions.

Like Trevecca, each Nazarene college has a missionary club of some type. The only contact between the clubs is the student conference on missions, the purpose of which is five-fold.

As leaders in their campus missions organization, the representatives to the leadership conference may keep up-to-date concerning trends, programs, and changes in Missions. Secondly, each student can take a critical look at his own organization when comparing it with others. A national missions fraternity is a goal of the organization, so the leadership conference is the initial step toward this goal.

Through personal meetings, each campus is bound together in understanding the others; and, finally, the conference positions the Department of World Missions on campus as a stimulator of ideas through the organization and as a liaison or coordinator.

Last year's officers of TMF were Paul Buchanan, President, and Steve Dibgy, Program Chairman. This year's officers are James Todd, President, and Debbie Clark, Program Chairman. Sponsors: Dr. Robert Norton.

Faculty workshop emphasizes professional development

By Sherry Foster

Trevecca's annual Faculty Workshop was held in the college library on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 3 and 4. The workshop is basically geared to orient faculty members to new policies and plans set forth by the administration.

The main topic of this year's workshop, faculty development, stemmed from a convention held this summer in Oklahoma City by CASC (Council for the Advancement of Small Colleges).

The convention concerned itself with the question "How can faculty keep up with new trends of teaching?" Trevecca was represented at the convention by administrators Dr. Strickland, Dr. Moore, and Dr. Parry, and faculty members Prof. Coulter, Prof. Skinner, and Dr. Childers.

Following the reports of these representatives, the faculty voted on six of their peers to join with the above-mentioned group and form a Faculty Development Committee. The newly elected members are: Prof. Jerry Hull, Dr. James Caldwell, Prof. Toby Williams, Prof. Barbara McClain, Dr. Ray Dunning, and Prof. Ann Fuqua.

This committee will discuss methods by which faculty can be motivated toward improvement of their teaching skills. One such method considered was the Reward and Growth Method, whereby faculty receive rewards such as money, promotion, recognition, or equipment for their endeavors in this area. Such endeavors might include reading certain books, attending special conventions, or otherwise acquainting oneself to new methods of teaching.

The formation of this new committee is evidence that the faculty at Trevecca is willing to continue learning and growing with the times. It is attitudes such as this that will assure the rising quality of higher education.

Encounters II: on the road, in the Spirit

By Kathy Lovell

For two long exciting weeks this summer, eleven people from Trevecca visited in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Several had traveled and sung with groups before, but this group wasn't to be like any other.

James Van Hook, the originator of the first Encounters, began again and pulled the talents of these eleven people together to make them into a group representative of Trevecca. With the different personalities and interests that each member has, Mr. Van Hook's job wasn't the easiest; but by judging just on their performances thus far, we feel that he has been successful.

The members of the group range from Freshman to Senior, from music to chemistry to religion majors, from Florida to California to Ohio. Some play instruments in our band and others "watch girls go by" for a hobby.

The new Encounters II members are: Steve Archer, Vickie Boone, Ed Cooner, Ron Dalton, Martha Gomer, Karen Johnston, Beverly Mills, Tim Pusey, Greg Rosser, Les Sprang, and Martha Williams.

All of their new music has been arranged by Jerry Nelson, who wrote two of the songs they performed.

We at Trevecca wish the Encounters II the best and know that God will use them for His glory as they travel this year.

Forensics program talked up

By Debbie Kiddy

Forensics, the art of debate and oral interpretation, has played an important two-fold role at Trevecca in its past two years of activity. First, the team has made Trevecca's name known from Indiana to Alabama; and second, has introduced many students to the thrill of winning in competition and the learning process that comes with defeat. The goals are: to increase proficiency in the art of public speaking, with emphasis in specific areas of individual interest, to meet others by travel; and to have a good time doing something enjoyable and worthwhile.

This year the team is bigger than ever with a total of 17 debaters and 13 interested in individual events, which includes everything from oratory to extemporaneous speaking. The tournaments are held at various universities. The three to be participated in during the Fall quarter will be at Western Kentucky, Butler University in Indiana, and Monte Valo University in Alabama.

Be sure to follow the accomplishments of your fellow students in future editions and boost your Forensic Team.

First Church funds flow

By Grant E. Beardslee

I'd be willing to say that 95 percent of the student body is wondering what happened this past summer concerning "The Cascade". I may not be able to answer all the questions that might be asked, but I'll try to set your minds at ease.

In a recent interview with Dr. Moore, I was able to determine what the hold up has been and is. When Rev. J. V. Morsch left First Church for another assignment, the Church budget was frozen. This included the funds for our schools' Cascade. Rev. Millard Reed has since taken over as Senior Pastor of First Church and the finance committee has voted to proceed with full and complete construction of the Cascade.

No tentative date has been made for completion, but it should be done in thirty-five days. (Not counting rainy days, half days of work, Saturday, Sundays and Holidays.) So please, "excuse the dirt, we are building a Cascade."

Change: a step toward progress?

By Linda Cramer

We're back in the old grind again (or just beginning it), and already we're counting the months or years to our graduation — noting how much progress we've made since starting, how we have changed for better or worse.

These two elements, progress and change moving towards improvement, are so different, yet so alike they cannot be separated. Like at Trevecca. The innovations that have occurred during the last two years I've been here are so numerous it is hard to remember them all, like: the tennis courts; the softball field (complete with bleachers); Bush apartments; Benson Hall; bicycle racks; the cascades; and the dress code (girls wearing slacks to class!). The list is endless and is continuing to grow.

Change for a "Christian" college like Trevecca can be detrimental if done all at once rather than in degrees. We cannot accept freedom and responsibility in one lump but must be fed, a spoonful at a time, so our system can digest it and learn to use it profitably. Otherwise, we and the institution would go haywire.

Through change, we improve our faults, learn new ideas and techniques, find what's "right" for us.

You must find what is right for you, also. A few lines from "The Desiderata" express it quite well: "If you compare yourself with others, you may become vain and bitter; for always there will be greater and lesser persons than yourself. . . simply be yourself." What better person can you be than . . . you?

Every day we, as students and as an institution, are growing, fulfilling, and striving further for better things. The year ahead can be such a time.

Only remember there are two sides to everything. Just "speak your truth quietly and clearly and listen to others, even the dull and ignorant; they too have their story."

With a course like Intro To Dramatic Arts, there are unlimited possibilities — We will study acting, applying make up, pantomime, and maybe, just maybe we'll even do a little "stereotyped movement to music!" (Sshhh!)

Concert Choir Experiences

By Debbie Kiddy

Excitement ran high among the 40 members and 4 chaperones as many students, parents, and faculty came to see the Trevecca Concert Choir start on the first European tour of Trevecca's history.

Driving from midnight, May 30th, we arrived in Sharpville, Pennsylvania at 3:30 p.m., May 31st, for our first service. We received a tremendous blessing.

Finally we reached New York to board the plane for Luxembourg. We traveled through Luxembourg, Holland, Belgium, England, France, Germany, Austria, and Switzerland. Each country, people, and customs brought a fresh sensation of the nearness of God, not only to us, but to all people.

There were many special times — those of laughter, shopping sprees, experimental eating (ever tried tongue — Parisian style? or an honest-to-goodness French pastry?), singing, and sharing; but, I'm sure we all agree the best times were when we shared Christ with our brothers and sisters in Europe.

One experience of spiritual growth stands out in my mind. We stayed in youth hostels for the most part, and the one in Paris had to be the worst! Many of the girls were upset, the men of the city being openly attentive. Yet Christ came in a special way that night. Sherri Gentry, Kim and Vickie Wonders found a recreation room and began to play their guitars and sing. The sound carried to our rooms where we were feeling depressed, homesick, and lonely. In small groups we drew together in that cramped, noisy room, and One more joined us. We had been fearful. He calmed us. The Holy Spirit showed himself to be universal, also, as all the French young people stopped playing pinball and their jukebox. Instead, they listened to our songs of praise to God and short testimonies. It was a spiritual high for all and so in keeping with Christ's words: "For the Holy Spirit, God's gift, does want you to be wise and strong, and to love them and enjoy being with them." (TLB)

We arrived home after three weeks, and none of us will ever be the same. Because of all the prayers, sacrificial giving, and uplifting from you, our growth and memories were made possible.

A moment of silence . . .

by Sam Bowers

By now the schedules have been set, and hours have been assigned to the many activities which consume the every hour of our days. Those times not officially possessed have already begun to be our moments of needed recreation and wanted socialization. We have become "buddies" with our roommate, suite mate or sweetheart, and now the small amount of time that is allotted for only us is shared.

For most of us a busy life seems right, and the rest of us are afraid to question whether right or wrong. Inactive and unfilled time is a threat. We feel that every moment of the day must be consumed "constructively", and usually just being around people makes us feel that our time is not being wasted.

Time is a commodity, and the way we use it now represents to us the use of it in our lives. Being basically social creatures, we often fail to realize the importance of time alone. Perhaps we can understand a two-fold message from the old hymn, "Sweet Hour of Prayer."

"Sweet hour of prayer that calls me from a world of care,

In seasons of distress and grief, my soul has often found relief.

And oft escaped the temptor's snare

By thy return, Sweet hour of prayer."

Surely prayer is an important message of the hymn, but also important is the time of seclusion. Isolation is a vital component that must precede togetherness.

For the foolish man, to be alone is to be lonely; for the wise man, it is solitude

Big words don't always convey big thoughts.

Dear Student, Faculty or Staff Member:

This year TREV-ECHOES goal is to act as a tool of communication, information and entertainment for the college campus as a whole; and, we must have your help and cooperation in order for this goal to be obtainable.

Whenever you have some news concerning Trevecca, either informative or a musing, please send it to me through campus mail, Box 765; put it under the office door; or give it to me personally. Advertising space is also available (10 cents per line, approximately five words, and $3 per column inch for regular ads).

We want everyone to have a voice in TREV-ECHOES. All you have to do is take advantage of it. "Letters to The Editor" is a good way to do this. However, no letter will be printed without the name of its writer being printed also.

Article contributions are welcome at any time, just as are your criticisms and comments about the paper. It is only through your participation what we can make TREV-ECHOES a paper that will adequately meet your demands. Please feel free to stop in at the office anytime it is open — because we are open to you!

Hoping you have a great year,
Sincerely

Shade trees

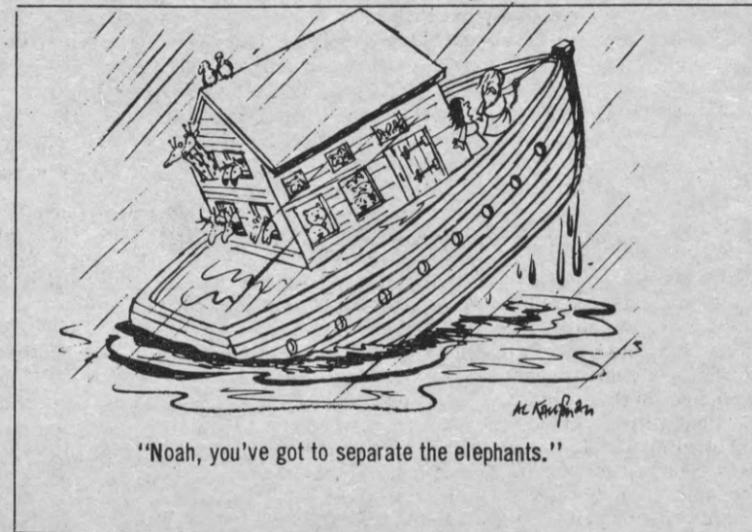

Bubble Gum, shiny brass bells to ring, fuzzy little Afros to tickle nose and chin — that's Shade Tree.

Bible stories, "The Marching Song," fun (like picnics) — that's Shade Tree, too. As a matter of fact, there isn't much Shade Tree DOESN'T involve!

Shade Tree evangelism, originated by Rev. Adrian Jones at Nashville's First Church of the Nazarene, is a typical outreach ministry in the sense that it takes the Word to the people (like in black housing projects or poor white areas) on a friendly, personal one-to-one basis.

However, it is UNUSUAL in the results it brings. There's nothing quite like six kids piling on you at once telling you not to EVER leave . . . and WHERE'S THE BUBBLE GUM??? All that mingled with the love and trust that can be found leads to many unforgettable experiences.

If you would like to become a part of this "unusual" ministry, call Rev. Jones at First Church or get in touch with one of the Trevecca students involved in it. You'll be glad you did!

Book Review: Till We Have Faces

C. S. Lewis writes on theology and . . .

"LOVE IS TOO YOUNG TO KNOW WHAT CONSCIENCE IS."

Till We Have Faces, by C. S. Lewis (William B. Eerdmans Publishing Co. 1966; original Harcourt, Brace and World Inc. 1956, 313 pp., $2.95).

Many, if not most, of you have never heard of C. S. Lewis. Some few have read from his most famous works such as Screwtape Letters or Mere Christianity. To both of these groups there lies a wide open and exciting world of literary excellence in the writings of this learned and compassionate Englishman. The breadth of C. S. Lewis' talent was awesome. By profession he was Professor of Medieval and Renaissance Literature at Magdalen College, Oxford until his death in 1963. He wrote several well-known scholarly works, among them The Allegory of Love. In the field of English Literature, these critical works are considered classics and necessary reading. But more important, Lewis was perhaps the ablest and most articulate defender of Orthodox Christianity in our century. With apparently effortless logic he tackled Christianity in most serious philosophical bugaboos in Miracles, The Problem of Pain, Mere Christianity and in countless essays, magazine articles, speeches and letters. I feel that no one before or since has so ably defended the truth of God in so negative an intellectual climate.

But it is not this specie of writing that I am reviewing today. For besides his theological prowess (despite the fact that he constantly reminds you that he is not a clergyman and "cannot speak authoritatively on these matters") he had great talent for prose fiction. His children's fantasy series, The Chronicles of Narnia (seven volumes), is worthy of serious reading by thoughtful adults and his science fiction trilogy, Out of the Silent Planet, Perelandra, and That Hideous Strength show great social as well as theological insight. That Hideous Strength, I rank as one of the best I have read ever on any subject. But perhaps the culmination of all the imaginative talent of C. S. Lewis is poured into the book I have before me, Till We Have Faces. Lewis calls this work "myth retold". It is the Cupid and Psyche myth told from the viewpoint of one of Psyche's sisters. But it is unlike any Greek myth you will ever read. Its characters are real flesh and blood people of very human and even contemporary passions. The book is a study of the nature of love, but not, as you would expect, the love of Cupid and Psyche. The narrator, Psyche's older sister, is the one whose life and love are studied. It is hard to describe the imaginative power of Till We Have Faces. The story could be your story, the love your love. As another reviewer (John Mason Brown, Book of the Month Club News) states: "Few books could be easier to enjoy or harder to describe than C. S. Lewis' Till We Have Faces. It is as brilliantly offbeat as his much admired earlier work The Screwtape Letters, but very different." The culmination of the novel overwhelms you with the awesome powers of love to both build and destroy depending on the motivation of the lover.

Lewis often used the novel to place his theories into a life situation. In this way he expanded his educational and social ideas outlined in The Abolition of Man in his novel That Hideous Strength. Likewise he illustrated his ideas about Heaven and Hell in The Great Divorce. In this way, Till We Have Faces is the practical outworking of his classic study of love, The Four Loves. It would be wise to read this book in conjunction.

Till We Have Faces is profoundly human. I readily identified with Psyche's sister and suffered with her. In this identification process I question the motivation of my own loves. It is a powerful work, well written and challenging.

-John Phelan

--:Till We Have Faces and other works by C.S. Lewis are available in the Baptist Bookstore on Broad. There is a new one volume collection of several of Lewis's greatest works, The Best of C. S. Lewis, there as well. It contains the material in Mere Christianity, Screwtape Letters and others.

your daytime schedule to release accumulated tension.

(3) Set realistic goals for yourself - seek a happy medium between study and outside activities. Do not accept invitations without weighing the total cost to your routine.

(4) Make use of the protein food groups offered at meal time. Substitute milk or fruit juice for that glass of tea or carbonated drink. Avoid excessive starches.

(5) Periodically do something out of your routine. Avoid dullness and mechanistic study. Comprehension is better when the mind is refreshed.

(6) Get at least 6 hours sleep at night and 2 hours of daytime relaxation in the form of rest or play. Most people feel they need more sleep than they actually do. Guard against too much rest. We all know the tiring effects of oversleeping! (Many thanks to the following medical personnel for contributions to this article: Mrs. Susan Coles, R.N.; Mr. J. T. Dr. Luke's: Health and the Christian young person

By Don Love

Dear Student:

Back many years ago (about 2000) I had my own practice in downtown Galilee. It was a good practice - nothing fancy, but I was well known as the best fish doctor around. Not that I treated many fish as patients, you understand, but rather those who engaged in that occupation. I was well off with two pairs of sandals in the garage, a colored tunic set, and an olympic-sized well bucket setting outside my backdoor. Sometimes I attended services on the Sabbath at the Temple at the corner of 5th and Fishnet. It was a good church, but I went mostly for the wine they served at communion.

One day this guy called Christ walks into my office and, much more than that, into my life. Marveling at his medical insight, I was absorbed in his medicine of the soul.

By now you probably realize that you've heard of me. I left my local practice to study and travel with the greatest soul surgeon in the country. After my journeys I wrote an extended article in a book that has been on the best seller list for quite a while. Over the years I have come to appreciate the compatibility of good body care with living the Christian life. In these retirement years, I am writing for collegiate Christians to remind them of the importance of good hygiene.

Today's question is "Is Trevecca Staying Up Past Its Bedtime?" Sleep. What is sleep? How much does the college person need to function at his best physically and spiritually? Often at the beginning of the campus school year students deprive themselves of their needed rest. Why? Probably the initial cause is a prevailing air of excitement. New surroundings, change in companionship from family to roommate, and anticipation of fitting into the norms and regimentation expected of a college student are all forms of this excitement. This excitement along with diarrhea from intestinal reaction to local water, upset stomach from regional foods, and constricted breathing passages due to atmospheric conditions (such as humidity) can produce several restless nights. Another subject closely aligned with these sleepless nights is tension.

Tension is an effort by the body to rise to a standard of perfection or demand that it is normally unaccustomed to. This tension is found in all levels of college age groups. Although generally abbreviated in the middle years, it is nevertheless present. In the beginning student it can result from the new role of laying down policy for ones self. In this process, indecision naturally asserts itself, capable of causing conflicts both mental and physical. Another tension building exercise for the newcomer is learning how to study. Many overstudy. Perhaps it would be good to clear up that word "overstudy." We say that the Freshman overstudies, causing abnormal amounts of stress. He is not overstudying in the sense that he is learning more material, yet he is overtaxing his faculties for the amount that he actually learns. Set realistic goals for yourself both academically and physically.

Upperclassmen tend to lose needed sleep in their 24-hour a day effort to impress new students (just joking, seniors). Those who have the greatest problem of anxiety in their upper years are those who did not learn to control tension in their earlier years.

Here are a few simple guidelines to remember:

- (1) Coordinate schedules with your roommate(s) to give each a quiet atmosphere in which to rest.
- (2) Plan to take short breaks in

Faculty Honored

The faculty and staff of Trevecca Nazarene College were honored on September 3, 1974, at the annual President's Dinner given by President and Mrs. Moore. The dinner was held at the Hilton Airport Inn as one of the opening events of the new academic year.

The special speaker for the evening was Dr. Herbert C. Gabhart, President of Belmont College in Nashville, Tennessee. Dr. Gabhart has served as president of that institution since 1959. He is an outstanding educator, minister, and civic participant.

An annual highlight of the President's Dinner is the announcement of the Faculty Member and Staff Member of the Year. These selections are made by the faculty, staff, and honor students. This year the Faculty Member of the Year Award was presented to Mr. Bill Green, and Mr. Wayne Gallup was selected as Staff Member of the Year.

Mr. Green has been at Trevecca Nazarene College since 1969. He is the Chairman of the Physical Education, Health, and Recreation Department, and is Trevecca's Varsity Baseball Coach. He is much admired by both faculty and students as was demonstrated by the recent announcement that students had selected him as the recipient of the 1974 Darda dedication.

Mr. Gallup came to Trevecca only two years ago as Building and Grounds Plant Superintendent. In this short period of time, he has won the hearts of the Trevecca community as well as developed an efficient maintenance system. He also demonstrates his love for the TNC students by serving as a staff member of College Hill Church of the Nazarene as College Coordinator.

The death of Dr. A. B. Mackey last year has reminded each of us at Trevecca Nazarene College that we shall forever be grateful to God for such a man and his self-giving service to Trevecca. At their annual meeting in February, the Board of Trustees voted unanimously to express their appreciation to Mrs. Mackey for the sacrifice of Dr. Mackey. A plaque bearing the Resolution of Appreciation was presented to Mrs. Lyla Mackey by Dr. Moore at the dinner.

Many people have the right aim in life but never get around to pulling the trigger.

Fine arts Retreat

By Cathy Ray

The Fine Arts Retreat was held on September 20-21. There were a couple of changes in the format of this year's retreat: the length of the retreat and the location. This year it lasted two days instead of one, and it was held at the District Center, a new facility 45 miles west of Nashville near Dixon, Tennessee.

The retreat was required for all music majors and minors in the Fine Arts Department. It was a time of mass choir rehearsal, ensemble rehearsal, Christian fellowship and recreation (mainly volleyball). A special goal for this retreat was rehearsal for the Trevecca Festival of Arts to be held on campus the first weekend in November.

Gavel Garble

Student Council Meeting
Monday Sept. 9, 1974

PRESIDING: M. Blankenship

ABSENT: V. Boone

OPENING: Bryan gave a short devotional.

STUCO CHAPELS: Tom Brower gave an overview of this year's STUCO chapels, with "specials" like Pek Gunn, Bob Benson, and Fred Huff. We will have three class chapels this quarter. STUCO members will be in charge of a 5 or 10 minutes devotional before the class meetings. Bryan will give one September 20, J. Crummer on October 4, and L. Cramer on November 1.

FRESHMAN ELECTIONS: Moved to Monday, Sept. 23. A motion was made (Mullinax) and seconded (Crummer) and passed unanimously. The Freshman Elections Chairman for this year is Billy Strickland. Thursday, Sept. 12 through Monday, Sept. 16 will be open for petitions. The campaign will be Wednesday, September 18 through Friday, Sept. 20. Speeches will be Friday the 20th in class chapel, and elections will be Monday, the 23rd. In case of a tie, the run-off will be Tuesday, Sept. 24. Sophomores will have entertainment and give the results of the elections Monday evening, the 23rd.

ALL SCHOOL RETREAT: Bob Johnston will be in charge and lead us in serendipity for the retreat. Tom Brower and Tim Ferguson are helping Bryan Alison plan the event. Dean Storey, Harper Cole and others will join us for the week-end.

NOMINATIONS FOR COMMITTEES: STUCO is responsible for nominating students to the following committees: Lyceum, Judiciary, Radio, Scholarship, Pre-Medical Advisory, Teacher's Education, Library and Bookstore, and Admissions and Retentions. A motion was made (Fox) and seconded (Mullinax) that we resend any action on the nominations we had made and table this action until tomorrow. It was a unanimous decision by the council; it was felt to be too important a matter to hurriedly rush through.

SPONSORS: Names for three possible sponsors for the Freshman Class are to be submitted by STUCO. Toby Williams is first choice, Coach Vail is second and Dr. Norton is third.

REGULAR MEETINGS: Tuesday at 5:30 will be the regular meeting time of the STUCO. A motion was made (Alison) and seconded (Strickland) that Dr. Moore and Mr. Cole be invited to next Tuesday's meeting. Passed unanimously.

CONSTITUTION: Some changes have been made in the constitution: Article III: Article V, Sections 6 and Section 2B, Section 4a and B, Article IX and X have been changed and/or revised. Discussion will be held at the next meeting on these revisions and additions.

CLOSING: Prof. Huff dismissed in prayer.
Respectfully submitted,
Angie Stocks
Secretary

Up With People Comes Here . . .

One of the three international casts of the Up With People show, known on six continents, is coming to Nashville, to perform on Sept. 26 at Municipal Auditorium 7:30 p.m. Tickets: $2.00 for General admission, $2.50 and $3.00 for reserved seats. Available at all first American Branch offices and at the auditorium.

The all-new 1974-75 Up With People show is just that — all new. After a month of staging and rehearsals, 130 different faces and 18 new and original songs have hit the road, bursting from the stages with the flair and spirit that have entertained millions around the world. Even if you've seen Up With People before, you'd better see it again — it's a whole new trip!

The Up With People show is a two-hour kaleidoscope of contemporary music — rock, jazz, country, and folk — with choreographed staging. It puts 130 performers on stage at once, young men and women from all over the United States and 11 other countries, white, black, red and yellow, bringing together a hundred different backgrounds and points of view. Along with an instrumental combo of guitars, drums, and funky brass, they put on a show that has brought in rave reviews from an assortment of critics in an assortment of places. BILL BOARD MAGAZINE called them "excitingly contemporary;" the NEW YORK TIMES, reviewing their Carnegie Hall performance, wrote "People, not nations or ideology, are what matter. That's an idea that is worth celebrating, and Up With People does it with charm, love and uncomplicated joy."

Up With People is an independent, nonprofit, educational corporation. The students in the three casts of the Up With People show come from throughout the United States, 11 other countries, and a variety of ethnic backgrounds.

The Up With People show is a happening that shouldn't be missed — an exciting and unique experience in communication and entertainment.

The Daily Express in London, reviewing Up With People, wrote: "They're black and white and Buddhist and Catholic and slanted and crinkly-haired and they're young and they're beautiful. More than anything, they believe in the future."

Inter-club group Makes Decisions

The first Inter-Club Council meeting of the 1974-75 academic year, held September 12, was called to order by President Bryan Alison, and opened with prayer by Jim Todd.

Eighteen members representing the three upper classes and various clubs were present at the meeting.

The first order of business was to elect a secretary to record the minutes of ICC meetings, and to notify the next order of business. After some discussion, approval for the activity was postponed, due to a conflict concerning the proposed date. The sale will be discussed at a later meeting.

Bryan Alison suggested an addition to the constitution for Inter-Club Council concerning attendance by the representatives of the classes and clubs. Unanimously approved, the provisions of the members of the meetings. After a brief vote was taken, Alice Hall was elected secretary by plurality.

The next order of business was the approval of a campus activity sponsored by the Christian Workers Association. Club president Russ Dorsey indicated CWA's intention to show the film "Thief in the Night", at 10:30 p.m. on October 11. The film, which would cost 50 cents per person and 75 cents per couple, was approved with 16 members voting affirmatively and 2 voting negatively. The film will be shown on campus pending approval from the Dean's office.

A slave sale to be sponsored by the cheerleaders and pep club was proposal involve mandatory attendance of the meetings" by the representatives or their designated representative. Should any member miss two meetings and fail to send a replacement, the club or class which he represents will be placed on probation. Upon the third absence, said class-club shall be barred from sponsoring campus activities for the remainder of the quarters including those activities already approved. Each club will be notified should its representative not attend a meeting.

No additional business required discussion, so the meeting was adjourned. The next meeting is scheduled for September 23.

"Wow, look at all those freshmen girls, will ya?"

Trevecca nets Vail

By Jonda Dement

Along with the other new additions to the TNC campus this fall comes a new and exciting basketball coach, Elmore Vail. He comes to us from Northwest

Nazarene College in Nampa, Idaho, after seventeen years of teaching and coaching experience there. Coach Vail graduated from NWNC in 1949 with a major in both math and physical education. The following year he received his master's degree from the University of Idaho in Education

Administration and Physical Education. He has done additional graduate work at the University of Oregon.

Coach Vail has had a wealth of coaching experience. It began while he was still an undergraduate at NWNC. During his last two years there he coached baseball, basketball, and football at the high school on the NWNC campus. After receiving his master's degree, Coach Vail went to Olivet Nazarene College. At ONC he taught for three years and was acting chairman of the

Mr. Elmore Vail

Physical Education Department. He also served as director of the intramural program. Coach Vail returned to NWNC after leaving Olivet. He served there for sixteen years as baseball coach and junior varsity basketball coach; he also spent one additional year as principal of the high school.

Coach Vail's philosophy of coaching is broad enough to cover all aspects of the game, yet he places emphasis on the, "spiritual well-being, of the individual, and then the academic accomplishment of persons involved in the athletic programs. The apathy found in many schools, as well as coaches, toward the academic progress of the student-athletes is, in Coach Vail's judgement, "hard to justify." He said he feels, "a very distinct responsibility to the total individual emphasizing the spiritual and the academic."

In the recruiting field, Coach Vail feels that there are two ways to approach the situation, taking into consideration the limited amount of funds available here at TNC. First, one could choose ten of fifteen people a year and divide the funds accordingly. Two, one could pick two players per year and offer them substantially more in aid; thereby accumulating eight to ten players in four years. Coach Vail feels that our churches have a responsibility to help us in this area. Looking toward the upcoming Trojan basketball season, the coach looks forward to "working for the best year possible." Needless to say, he realizes that this will be no easy task, and he asks for the support of the "total school."

Men run cross-country For Trevecca College

Trevecca has a new inter-collegiate sport: cross-country. Cross-Country is literally what the name implies. It is a test of speed and endurance over a five mile course. The decision to add cross-country to the inter-collegiate program was made this summer, according to Professor Jerry Hull, who is serving as coach for the team.

The scoring for cross-country is somewhat complicated. At each meet TNC can enter seven persons. However, only the first five can score. The later a person finishes, the more points he is awarded. Consequently, as in golf, the lowest score wins the meet. As was pointed out earlier, only the first five finishers can score for a team, yet the other two members can help substantially. If either of these two members, (called "pushers"), finish before any of the opposing team's first five, penalty points will be added to the opponent's score.

Professor Hull explained that the sport actually began in England. The distance was not five miles. The race was from one town to the next. There was no set path; each runner had to choose his own way. Today the course is marked off so that all participants must cover the same terrain. As professor Hull pointed out, this course is not simply an oval track; rather, it is a course that covers hills, slopes, and even creeks if they happen to be in the way.

Since the decision to field a team was not made until the summer, TNC is at something of a disadvantage. Professor Hull pointed out, "Our guys simply have not had the time to prepare." Right now, Professor Hull is set to go with the following runners, (listed in order of finish at the time trials), freshman Bob Jared, junior Jerry Jared, sophomore Jim Ward, freshman Fred Stewart, junior Jim Hiatt, and seniors, Rob McLaren, Dennis Conrad, and Mike Rogers.

The first meet, against Lipscomb and Covenant, was held Saturday at Percy Warner Park. The next meet is Saturday the 28th, followed by a meet on Friday, November 4. By Bracken Ingram

Dr. Moore was made a Colonel by a certificate presentation from Pek Gunn, poet laureate of Tennessee, in Student Council Chapel, Friday, September 13th. Hats off to Dr. Moore!

The telephones will be left on ALL NIGHT for the rest of the quarter, and will then be reviewed and re-decided for next quarter?

This summer the TNC library purchased some paper-back books to establish a "browse" section in the upstairs magazine room. Students are encouraged to check out these books on a two-week basis, as well as other library materials. Some of the modern-day authors represented here are Phyllis Whitney, Victoria Holt, Agatha Christie, Peter Marshall, Arthur C. Clarke, and many others. There's sure to be something to suit your fancy, whatever it might be!

TREV-ECHOES has gone to newsprint this year (obviously) because of the results of a student poll taken spring quarter last year and (obviously) because it is cheaper and more "newspaper-ish." Sports, news, and feature sections have also been broadened. Any questions or improvements concerning TREV-ECHOES should be addressed and sent to box 108, campus mail. We are always open to your suggestions - because we're YOUR paper!

There has been an approval for three after-hour activities this quarter - two 'til one o'clock and one 'til TWO o'clock?

Our '74 DARDA'S are to be here by the beginning of October?

Oh, that I could but share the pain,
which greatly grieves you now;
I'd take the hurt far from thee,
If God would show me how.

Words cannot soothe thy sorrow, they never truly convey the things I wish to tell you,
the things my heart would say.

I'll listen while you talk,
of how it hurts you so,
or sit in solemn quietness and try your thoughts to know.

Beyond these things I'm helpless,
this much and no more can I do.
But when God looks within my heart,
He sees there the tears of two.

TWA kicks off year

Trevecca Women's Athletics is starting off another exciting year with the announcement of the selection of the Extramural Volleyball team. Team members are: Donna Brewer, Rose Burky, Jan Carmack, Jonda Dement, Sherri Gentry, Alice Hall, Nancy Humphrey, Donna McLeMore, Brenda Patterson, Jan Taylor, Caroline Walsh, and Beth White.

Trev-Echoes sports staff gathers facts

This year's sports staff will work hard to present all aspects of the different athletic events on campus to the student body. Like the student body, the sports staff has a majority of underclassmen. Here is a brief look at those who will be covering the TNC sports beat this year.

First there is John Yount. John is an eighteen-year-old freshman from Dunedin, Florida. A graduate of Dunedin High School, John plans to major in music here at Trevecca. At present he is undecided about his future after graduation. John enjoys sports activities of all types.

Bruce Oldham is also an eighteen-year-old freshman. He is from Gallatin, Tennessee. A graduate of Gallatin Senior High School, Bruce worked on the school paper, "Hilltop Highlights", for two years while he was there. At Trevecca, Bruce plans to major in religion and go directly into church work after graduation. He particularly enjoys music, in addition to his work with the sports staff.

The only sophomore on the sports staff is nineteen-year-old Jonda Dement. Jonda is from Lexington, Kentucky, where she graduated from Henry Clay High School. Presently a Physical Education major, Jonda hopes to go to graduate school and work for her master's degree. Her hobbies are tennis and writing.

The lone upperclassman on the sports staff is the sports-editor, Bracken Ingram. Bracken is a twenty-year-old senior from Nashville. A 1971 graduate of Glenciff High School, he served as the sports-editor of the school paper, "The Stampede". Presently completing his major in history, Bracken will attend law school next year. He enjoys golf and swimming.

WANTED — 2 nursery attendants for toddler nursery at Community Bible Church from 11:00 - 12:00 each Sunday. Will pay for services. If interested, please call 833-0896. Church is at 6005 Edmondson Pike.

Coach Debbie Lore feels that with six returnees from last year's team, plus six new members, the coming year should be exciting and, hopefully, victorious. Practice began on September 19, and the first game is tentatively scheduled for October 11. Coach Lore is hoping for a thirty game schedule. Included in such a schedule would be schools such as: Middle Tennessee State University, Fisk University, and Belmont College.

Time Out: A good sports forecast

Would you believe that . . .

Freshman cheerleader tryouts were held Thursday, September 19. Selected were Barbara Pennington, with alternates Melita Capps and Janice Glenn.

Trevecca's enrollment presently stands at 788 (as of September 13), approximately up 2½ percent from last year.

Gary Black has recently been chosen to fill the vacancy left by Carla Hendershot in the Student aid office. He is, therefore, doing a double job by working there in on Student Employment. Mr. Everett Holmes now has taken up the added responsibility of purchasing left by this transition. Congratulations to Gary on his "step up."

Two members from the WNAZ staff, Trevecca's FM radio station, will be traveling to Chicago for a convention on September 30th. Details will appear in an October issue of TREV-ECHOES.

By Bracken Ingram

Fall is upon us, and with it arrives another year of athletic activities at Trevecca. While many people turn their attention solely to the football wars, (both collegiate and professional), we should not forget that there are other sports activities occurring. Baseball, cross-country, volleyball, and even basketball are in the campus spotlight.

Coach Green and the baseball team will soon be playing a schedule of fall games. Physical Education Department Professor Lore is working to organize and extramural girls' volleyball team. The varsity basketball team will be under the leadership of a new coach when the season opens. Speaking of the new coach, (and Athletic Director), Elmore Vail, let us hasten to mention that he has already instituted a new sport to our campus: cross-country.

Although we don't have an intercollegiate football team, we do have an intramural football program. Under Trevecca Athletic Association President Jeff Fox, this may be one of the best seasons' football we've seen in quite a while. In the winter, men's and women's intramural basketball will be in full swing. With the addition of lighting to the tennis courts, tennis will be more popular than ever in the spring.

Also in the spring, the golf team will be trying to find their way around the local links. The baseball team will be looking for its best season yet. Coach Smith and the tennis team will probably have to fight their way on to the tennis courts for their varsity schedule.

All in all, the forecast is for a great year of sports here at TNC. Only one final ingredient is needed: You. Participation is the key. If we will all get involved we can accomplish two tasks at once. One, we can banish the thought that, "there's nothing to do around here." Two, we can build school spirit to a new level in this "year of preparation."

Wonderous is the strength of man will do more in the same time, cheerfulness, and its power of will do it better, will persevere in it endurance the cheerful longer, than the sad or sullen.
