

A Second Epistle of Ignatius to St. John.

125

His friend<sup>906</sup> Ignatius to John the holy presbyter.

If thou wilt give me leave, I desire to go up to Jerusalem, and see the faithful<sup>907</sup> saints who are there, especially Mary the mother, whom they report to be an object of admiration and of affection to all. For who would not rejoice to behold and to address her who bore the true God from her<sup>908</sup> own womb, provided he is a friend of our faith and religion? And in like manner [I desire to see] the venerable James, who is surnamed Just, whom they relate to be very like Christ Jesus in appearance,<sup>909</sup> in life, and in method of conduct, as if he were a twin-brother of the same womb. They say that, if I see him, I see also Jesus Himself, as to all the features and aspect of His body. Moreover, [I desire to see] the other saints, both male and female. Alas! why do I delay? Why am I kept back? Kind<sup>910</sup> teacher, bid me hasten [to fulfil my wish], and fare thou well. Amen.

906 Literally, "his own."

907 Some omit this word.

908 Literally, "of herself." Some read, instead of "de se," "deorum," when the translation will be, "the true God of gods."

909 Or, "face." Some omit the word.

910 Or, "good."
