Beware! Invasion on the new track!! The ghosts of former Chapman Hall Residents are on the loose!!!

by Ima Psychic
Crusader Campus Intern Psychic

At first glance, it appears as any other construction site—nothing but dirt. But this is no ordinary patch of dirt. Underneath the dust lies a forbidden secret, the mystical burial ground of Chapman Hall.

Since it became the first dorm on the campus of NNU, hundreds of former residents have perished, and their souls are forever ensnared in the sacred land, destined to spend eternity in anguish as their blessed sanctuary met its demise last spring. With each brick that fell to the ground, a grievance was filed against the perpetrators of the so-called beautification project. The ghosts have had almost a year to plan their strategy, and vengeance will, in fact, be theirs.

Imagine now that time has passed, and track members are happily running along their merry way on the new track. They are unsuspecting and naïve. They have no idea of the great catastrophe that is to befall them. It starts out slowly—maybe a cold sensation on the third lap around or perhaps a gentle brush across the shoulder as they pass the finish line. "That's weird," they think to themselves. "I was sure I felt something." But it does not get a second thought. After all, they are college students, and lack of sleep is known to produce some pretty bizarre problems. "That's it," they think, "I'm just tired." - And so the running continues.

The next day is worse. The ghosts are not happy that their home is being invaded and demoralized by the insensitive pounding upon their graves day after day. They resolve to get the runners' attention in a stronger way this time. So as one runner sets out for an early morning warm-up, he suddenly feels a jerk and is soon face down on the ground. Rubbing the throbbing pain in his ankle, he looks back to find the phantom rock, but it is not there. Now, the poor boy thinks he is losing his mind. He considers that something grabbed his ankle, but that's ridiculous. Nobody would believe it. "Alright," he says aloud, "I'm going to keep going. It's been a long night, and I'm just clumsy." He gets up and continues on his way. The ghost is outraged! What kind of dull-witted student would miss such an obvious clue? The ghost rises from the ground and forms a wall to block the student. As the student runs full force into the invisible barrier, he hits his head and is knocked unconscious for a few moments. Upon awakening, the dazed student takes off as fast as he can. He cannot tell his fellow team members what he has experienced. They would laugh, and he would be embarrassed. He begins to think that he has a psychological problem and soon becomes a hopeless recluse trapped in his room by fear.

This is but one example of the events that are to come if construction is not stopped immediately. After the track team has been disbanded and institutionalized, the ghosts will wreak havoc on the rest of campus. Nobody will be safe.

Within a matter of years, NNU will be nothing but a myth. Students and faculty will have been "taken care of," and it will be anyone's guess where they have mysteriously gone.

Q-Zar of Boise. Of course they don't say they want to drive us insane. What they say they want to do is have us live in homes where appliances are on the Internet, sharing information and appliances will be smarter than most of their owners." For example, the article states, you would have a home where the dishwasher "can be turned on from the office" and the refrigerator "knows when it's out of milk" and the bathroom scale "transmits your weight to the gym." I'll be smarter than most of their owners." For example, the article states, you would have a home where the dishwasher "can be turned on from the office" and the refrigerator "transmits your weight to the gym."

I frankly wonder whether the appliance manufacturers, with all due respect, have been breaking track. I mean, did they ever stop to ask themselves WHY a dishwasher "can be turned on from the office" and the refrigerator "transmits your weight to the gym."

RECORD TURNOUT PREDICTED

by Anonymous Manson Lover
Inquisitor Staff Writer

With foggy atmosphere, screaming lyrics, pounding rhythms, and raging guitar riffs, the next act to play the Montgomery Field House will be one of loud, thumping beats and deep, thoughtful verses played out in one evening of high-quality entertainment.

In what promoters hope will become an annual event on the campus of Northwest Nazarene University, there has been cause for the stirrings of tremendous exhilaration and fervor. In accordance with the new trend on campus of bringing huge names and roaring concerts, the SGA continues to do a spectacular job with the next concert to play NNU.

However, their next booking might just raise the eyebrows of students in breathless anticipation and drop the jaws of local supporters at the chance to help fund such an event, as well as turn out to be so well attended that they are in above their heads.

The next music act to make the rafters of Montgomery Field House thunder is none other than the fantastic talent of Marilyn Manson.

"I just hope I get in line soon enough to get close tickets," said longtime Manson fanatic Sherri Borger "I'll camp out if I have to." Such is the excited reaction of all who have heard the news of the upcoming arrival of the hit-making musicians. "I tried to see him the last time he was in the area, but I couldn't get past the police lines and the angry parents. I was so disappointed," added Borger.

With hit albums such as "Smells Like Children," "Anitchrist Superstar" and "Mechanical Animals," Marilyn Manson is an act worth catching. His songs have hit the air waves and caught the attention of music critics everywhere. "I can't believe he's really coming. I love the song 'Angel with the Scabbed Wings', and I can't wait to hear it live!" said Freshman Jared Lanham.

However, the arrival of such a big, well-known act on the campus of a private institution has given rise to a few concerns. "We've had many phone calls concerning concert attendance," stated SGA President, Shawn Blenker, "I've done my best to reassure seating for everyone, but the demand is even higher than expected." Those putting the event together have been overwhelmed by questions as to where tickets can be purchased, if a limit will be put in place and whether the show has any advertising spaces left for local businesses wanting to put their name on an event like this.

Apparently, Manson has caused some upheaval in other towns where concerts have been held and comes to Nampa with enthusiastic anticipation. "Concert-goers can rest asured that Manson will perform to his fullest abilities for such an excited crowd. Expect his trademark antics such as stripping for the crowd and throwing various things out for the fans to dodge," stated a Manson representative. "It [the cost of the ticket] will be most worth it." The idea that Manson is not a welcome act at every city was boggling to the minds of SGA members, "He's such a revolutionary, reaching act that delivers a dose of realism and struggle to listeners that I can't imagine a city asking him not to come," added Blenker, "He really touches people."

Marilyn Manson will rock the Field House coming May 13th, and tickets go on sale April 5th.

Meet the man who turns you on every night

by Twinkle Toes
Crusader Campus Guest Writer

Have you ever walked around campus and wondered, "Who makes sure the lights in some buildings are turned on, and who makes sure in others they are turned off?" Some may assume that each building has a janitor do it, or that, if a professor is working late, he or she makes sure to turn off the last one as they leave.

This is an upsetting presumption, and The Inquisitor would like to set the record straight. There is a person in charge of this important job, and we are pleased to introduce the student body to Jonah Simans, NNU's official Master Light Controller.

Jonah Bartholomew Simans was born on February 9, 1949 in Bucyrus, Ohio. He was the fourth child born to Lucillia and Wade Simans. Jonah grew up with two brothers and two sisters. He has a twin named Kathleen, an older sister named Martha and two older brothers: Timothy and Albert. The Simans moved quite frequently as young Jonah was growing due to the fact that his father was in the army. Jonah went to four different schools from Kindergarten until 9th grade. Once he was in High School, his father decided to retire from the army and help his father-in-law work in his store in a small town called Brady, Texas. Jonah and Kathleen went to high school together in Brady, Idaho and California.) Jonah was still painting and did not need to stay in Maine. By now, the family had grown by two people, with one to go. In 1980, the family was complete with three children: Cindy (25), Patrick (23), and Doris (20).

Jonah began working at NNC in 1990 as the Assistant Light Controller in addition to painting. He decided that it would be a good idea to get a job where he could work with other people on a regular basis, and as he put it, "A second job never hurt nobody." In 1997, he was promoted to Master Light Controller and really likes his job. In the middle of 1997, the school decided to add to the job. Jonah rose to the challenge, so as well as turning off the lights, he also turns them on. His advice to the student body is "Never forget to love God, and never judge a book by its movie."

After the Simans twins graduated from High School, Kathleen went on to study in Minnesota at Bemidji State University and pursued a degree in Social Work. Jonah went a different route, going to Pennsylvania to attend Slippery Rock State College to study Art. His goal was to become an artist and to sell his art to museums. He wanted to travel across America, hit every single town he could and literally "paint America in its entirety." He started in the summer of 1971 in Ft. Kent, Maine. By the time he reached Portland (Maine that is), he gave up his mission and settled there for awhile. While there, Jonah met a woman named Glenda Mazzi. They fell in love, and like so many others they ended up getting married on August 14, 1973.

In the summer of 1978, Jonah and Glenda moved to Meridian, Idaho for several reasons. Glenda loved teaching 5th grade in Maine, but she wanted to be closer to family. (Her family lives on the West Coast—mainly in

TWO NEW ADDITIONS COMING TO THE FIRST FAMILY- TWINS!

by Amy Babydoll

World Famous Fibber

A spokesman for the President announced today that two new members will be added to the House this Fall. However, the change comes not to the House of Representatives, but to the White House.

According to family physicians, Hillary Rodham Clinton will give birth to twin baby girls this September. The babies will be the first to be born in the White House since the Kennedy Administration and are the only twins to be born to a Presidential family while in office.

The announcement comes almost a year after the Monica Lewinski scandal and the subsequent impeachment and near-removal of President Clinton. After the President's admonition of guilt as to having had extramarital sexual relations, it had been widely assumed that the First Family would fall apart, with Hillary leaving Bill after the 2000 term ended. However, once the trial and scandals were resolved, the family decided to focus primarily on forgiveness, honesty and renewal. With goals focused on family, the Clintons decided to try to conceive a second child.

Chelsea is reportedly excited by the news of the pregnancy and plans to spend the 2000 Fall term at home to help with the delivery and first months. Chelsea also plans to take summer classes on CPR, Child Care and Development and Child Psychology.

"I'm so happy that my parents have decided to bring these little girls into the world," said Chelsea. "I've always wanted to be a big sister and now I can. I want to learn all I can to help them when they get here."

According to doctors, prenatal complications should be minimal and White House staff are undergoing training for any emergency situation. Training includes CPR skills, proper lifting procedures, emergency delivery information and other important skills. Medical technicians and nurses are standing by day and night to ensure the First Lady's comfort and care.

"I'm nervous about the whole thing, but I'm confident it will all work out just fine, water or not."

~Hillary Clinton

"These will be the first twins born in the White House," stated Kenneth Taylor, White House medical staff supervisor. "Our job is to see that they and Mrs. Clinton are safe, happy and, most of all, healthy."

Mrs. Clinton has reportedly contacted numerous experts on childbirth, health food/nutritional supplements, exercise programs and many others for health care advice. Her husband has expressed concern about the pregnancy, stating that Chelsea's delivery had been a hard one, ending in a caesarian section. The Clintons have decided to look into water birthing, as it is both easier on child and mother.

"I'm more comfortable with the concept of a warm bath rather than a cold table with stirrups," the First Lady told a friend Monday. "I'm nervous about the whole thing, but I'm confident it will all work out just fine, water or not."

The First Family will hold a press conference Thursday to discuss the pregnancy and how it will effect the administration, and to ask the public to send them ideas for names. If anyone has name ideas, they should be sent to the White House Baby Address - P.O. Box 21234, Washington, D.C. 82930-9743.

Monica Olson to take over in Jordan as Tyrant Queen

by Ishmael Harim

World Class Person

Monica Olson has now reached the pinnacle of her diabolical plan to take over the world.

After President Richard Hagood returned from his sabbatical, which was only a coverup for his rise to power in Jordan as the reigning king, he promptly gave Olson a position of power. Upon completion of this "break" Hagood has relinquished his kingdom and power in Jordan to the power hungry Olson.

Olson claims that this turn of events was quite a surprise to her, yet inside sources claim that this is just a small step in her quest for world domination.

Olson would not comment about these events, but as she left she was heard saying under her breath, "This is only the beginning - the rest of the world will fall, and I will reign supreme!"

DAUGHTER OF CRUDE OIL NOGUL RESPONSIBLE FOR INCREASE IN GAS PRICES

by Valdez B.P. Amaco

World Gas Guzzler

Monica Olson once again tightens her grip on the United States with yet another increase in gas prices. Olson claims that increasing the gas prices is just one way in which she can help all Americans with their fitness.

"By increasing gas prices people are forced to either walk or ride a bicycle - which in turn helps everyone to become more physically fit," claims Olson.

Although there are many people who feel that this could be the push people need to become more fit, there are those who are skeptical about her reasoning behind the price hikes.

Carey Cook was quoted as saying, "Personally I think that she [Olson] is raising the prices of gas so that she can gain more power over everyone, and you know what? I do not like the face that she is getting more power than me."

NU Student Monica Olson Jeopardizes International Political Convention

A major international conference featuring lectures by several important political figureheads and philosophers – among them politically active rock group Rage Against the Machine and Andy Rooney – was held this past Saturday at the Sorbonne in Paris.

“When I rule the world, my power will be absolute!”
~Monica Olson

The keynote speaker, notorious postmodern intellectual and father of the so-called Deconstructionist movement, Jacques Derrida, delivered a perplexing yet insightful lecture entitled Hegemonic Government Power Structures, Differance, and Auto-Deconstruction”, in which he pointed out that the only possibility for any sort of political freedom is that governments fully endorse and protect the freedom of expression and that they remain open to criticism and reform, but that, even if such freedoms were not enforced, change is nonetheless inevitable.

Derrida’s keynote lecture was followed by several rebuttals, including that of NNU student Monica Olson, who began her tirade by pointing out that the above paragraph is actually only one sentence. She also defeated most of what Derrida had to say by pointing out that “everything Jacques just said is just stupid. When I rule the world, my power will be absolute!”

U.S. TO FINALLY MAKE THE SWITCH TO THE EUROPEAN METRIC SYSTEM

by Heather Feather
New World Creator

WASHINGTON, D.C - An angry crowd of thousands gathered in our nation’s capital to protest against the proposed shift to the metric system. The mob assembled early Saturday morning just as President Clinton announced his decision in a rare live address from Pennsylvania Avenue, stating, “This measure is the first of a long series of events designed to create a better relationship between us and the Motherla—umm...what I mean is, I like kilometres. They’re shorter.” Moments later, he was hustled away as the mob became violent and began pelting him with biscuits.

Queen Elizabeth II would not consent to an interview, but she was quoted as saying, “We are so very pleased that Mr. Clinton has decided to cooperate.”

The crowd remained in the city for much of the afternoon, some charismatic leaders among them making passionate impromptu speeches from the steps of the Capitol. “Is we gonna let ‘em bloomin’ ruddy Brits tell us lot ‘ow ta do EVERYFINK?” one yelled, answered by angry roars from the assembled citizens. “They be tellin’ us ta buy our petrol in litres, next!”

Another large group, discontent with merely expressing their discontentment in Washington, D.C., stood on the Eastern shore of the Pacific Ocean and yelled at the top of their lungs, “Wait un’il we gets over fere and teach you ruddy bloomin smeggin plonkers a fing or to, oi!” While the effectiveness of this tactic is unclear, an elite team of bobbies is reputedly on its way. The Queen, in an unexpectedly daring move, is sending all 24 of them. However, according to all reliable sources, the convoy has been temporarily stalled by the difficulty of loading the horses onto the airplane.

Closer to home, the much-debated issue is rapidly dividing the NNU campus. The Math and Science Department report themselves “pleased with the way things are going.” “At last,” commented Dr. Korntved, reclining back in his chair at the head of the table in the faculty lounge, “America is deciding to adopt a system of mathematic simplicity. With this new system, we will finally have the power to TAKE ON THE WORLD!!” His fellow professors around the table cackled with insane glee.

The Philosophy and Religion Department, however, calls the new system “unbiblical.” “Where exactly would you find the word ‘kilometre’ in the Word of God?” asked Dr.

George Lyons, speaking for the Biblical Studies faculty. While the Philosophy students retired to Williams Hall 105 to “think about this” (they have not been heard from since), the rest of the department declared jihad on the Math and Science Department, recruiting the Fencing Club as their mercenaries. The Math and Science Department countered by sending in the

In the meantime, Dr. Wendell Bowes is promoting his new ‘kosher’ system of measurement, whose main units are the ‘ephod,’ the ‘bath,’ and the ‘hezekiad.’ This is certain to become quite popular in certain circles.

UFO's (Unidentifiable Food Objects)

by Lola Canola

Inquisitor Gal

Conspiracy lurkings within the bowels of Marriott. I'm certain of it. I watch them carefully as they look at you through their beady eyes . . . forcing us to eat of foods that God never intended to be released upon the once green planet!

Our meats are veiled heavily with strange globs of eww, making you suspect that The Thing set before you to consume is not really part of ANY of the four basic food groups, but merely a mirage of so-called 'wholesome goodness'!

Everyday, I sit in one of the chairs that surround the strategically placed tables, struggling within myself to refrain from yelling out loud to the unknown, "We're college students, you evil-doers! Give us something that won't become alive upon sight, rising to attack us when we least expect it, gnarling at us with big pointy teeth!"

Often, I find myself brooding over my strange meal, and in the style of William Shatner, I yell out, "What is this alien being I see before me?"

It has gotten to the point that we have been tampered with so long by the Marriott system that we are slowly changing, becoming their sickly, twisted little puppets guided by the hand of the Marriott chieftain.

But we mustn't be fooled. We must fight the urge to be duped by the terrifying seafood pizza, whose crust seems to be growing larger and larger as the days pass us by!

We must learn to ask Marriott questions, such as, "What exactly does this dish consist of?" and, "Will I go through great pain, suffering, and trauma if I digest it?" If this seems to be the case, and if you do digest it, - ask them to refrain from saving you and to simply allow you to die in agony. Also, asking if Marriott provides a good insurance policy is always a good idea.

Know your rights before your card is scanned! Realize that as you are entering the sometimes jammed doors of the Marriott complex, you must place yourself on full guard and become analytical of everything that assumes the shape of a consumable item. Always beware of the possibility of dwindling amounts of forks, the lack of real ranch dressing and the monster ice machines that bury you in cubes of water as quickly as quicksand, devouring your hand-held cups within an icy abyss. These horrific occurrences are alive, well and breeding profusely in the confines of Marriott, so, friends - be aware!

Undercover search shows that cafeteria passes off their own breed of "bird" as chicken!

"It was a horrible sight, A HORRIBLE SIGHT!!!!" Exclaimed one investigator of the discovery made earlier this week. "All around me were these hideous turkey-chicken cross breeds wobbling around on their deformed feet making gobbling clucks at me!"

After some complaints that the meat in Marriott's Sizzling Chicken Salad didn't really taste like chicken, investigators from Idaho's Genuine Food Bureau arrived for a surprise inspection of Sodexho-Marriott. What they uncovered was shocking and horrifying.

Not only was the meat not from chickens, but it was not from any species known to man up to this point in time.

"They were cross-breeding turkey and chicken," foul specialist Dr. Crookedhat remarked, "I really don't know how they did it, it defies science. All I know is that I will NEVER look at poultry in the same way again!"

AAAAAAAAAAAAAAAAUUUUUUUUUUUUUUUUUUUGGHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHHH!"

Marriott was passing off not only the meat of these turkens but the eggs as well.

It looks like Marriott was caught just in time. A Sailor in California testified that he was asked to ship seagulls to Nampa.

Also, Marriott is now being questioned as to what is in their other "meat" products.

"We still don't know where that whole colony of cats which lived in the bushes went," said one queazy student.

6 The Inquisitor Cover Story April 4, 2000

Marriott's secret plans to join with intelligence group and wipe out part of the gene pool are revealed!

The Inquisitor's inside sources at Sodexho-Marriott have leaked disturbing new information to us concerning the cafeteria's new food fight policy.

As of today, April 3, Sodexho-Marriott has secretly aligned itself with MENSA, an organization devoted to self-proclaimed genius.

Our source tells us that the alignment is in response to last Sunday's altercation and represents a drastrict, no-holds-barred approach to good cafeteria discipline and order.

"[Sodexho-Marriott] feels that the sort of behavior characterized by this past Sunday's food fight exhibits the sort of behavior typical of the lowest sort of human being and believes that such should be weeded out of the human population's gene pool."

Hearing of the event through covert university agents, MENSA, the organization devoted to genius, has thrown its support behind Sodexho-Marriott's recent decision. Deligates from MENSA met with Sodexho-Marriott management in an all-night meeting, hammering out the details of their plan to eradicate food-fighting tendencies out of the gene pool.

By the design of the new Sodexho-Marriott food fight policy, "Mandate Soilent Green," any student caught throwing food will be lured into the kitchen to "work it off," where he or she will be sedated, injected with a fatal, fast-acting chemical and served up over the next few days.

"The way we figure it," said a MENSA spokesperson when questioned about the new policy, "we have to rid the human race of the potential for such behavior, but we don't want to waste the nutritional resources the human body holds."

Is secret turken cross- ie (the pig lady) garbage ag hidden cannibal scandal!!

Pig Woman is human garbage disposal!!!

FDA turns up a horrific discovery living under the conveyor belt.

Sodexo-Marriott in Nampa, ID on the Northwest Nazarene University Campus was recently indicted by the Food and Drug Administration for abuses (both animal and emotional) and unsanitary practices.

The police have been receiving anonymous calls from unnamed sources complaining of a large animal located underneath the conveyor belt. The FBI was called in and found, instead of an animal, a WOMAN! This is not just any woman, but a woman who seems to have the head and genetic make-up of a pig.

It seems this woman was bought by Marriott 30 years ago from an unwed mother in exchange for Ex-Lax and anonymity. Nothing else is known about whereabouts of her relatives or her background. ($$$Call 1-888-Save Gert if you information regarding her background.$$$)

Years and many complaints later, the police discovered a NOW 550-pound pig/woman. Sodexo was not able to be reached for comments about Gertrude (Gertie for short) and has been uncommonly tight-lipped about the recent happenings.

As far as the FDA can tell, Gertie's whole purpose at Sodexo

Gertie smiles happily in her new home as she sips her chamomile tea and plans her future as Pig Lady Craker was to act as a GARBAGE DISPOSAL! Though the government is outraged, Gertie has been quoted as saying that she enjoyed her job and "tried to carry it [garbage disposing] out to the best of her abilities." Way to go Gertie...

Gertie is considered the greatest genetic achievement of this age. Scientists are hounding this new discovery, attempting to discover the genetics behind this. Dare we say the science department gone bad?

A huge thanks to the Boulders and Balls Crane company for the generous use of the lift and to the NNU students who generously donated to the Gertie clothing fund.

Today, Gertie resides in a shelter for abused and battered women, trying to cope with her co-dependency of food. The only thing that gets her through the day are her thoughts of her fiance Craig Craker who says, "Gertie is a big ol' box of treats."

Environmental Services and Sodexo-Marriott join together in diabolical scheme

"Thank goodness I got out when I did," says a former employee of Environmental Services, "The things they've begun doing to the good students of this campus is so sick and twisted that I just couldn't be a part of it."

This employee is just one of many who have previously taken advantage of the seemingly healthy source of income that Environmental Services offers. Now, he's blowing the top off of a conspiracy started just last year. Fortunately for us, it has now come to an end, and none too soon.

"The cleaners that we were told to use were giving me this funny feeling," says the employee, "so I called my 3rd grade Sunday School teacher, who is an undercover chemist for the CIA and asked if she could analyze a sample for me."

What she found was astonishing. The chemicals used in the cleaners are formulated so that, when the fumes are inhaled, it causes a mutation in the genes which, over time, slows the metabolism causing you to eat less and less.

Apparently, the source of this plot is and has always been rooted in the much-loved school cafeteria. While the owners of Marriott were unwilling to talk to us, an anonymous employee agreed to be interviewed in exchange for a new hairnet and half a can of Altoids.

"Every Thursday just before I go home from work," said the employee, "This group of men drive up in an unmarked VW van wearing white labcoats and sunglasses. Originally, I thought they were just another band of aspiring cult leaders, but one night, I decided to go back and soon found out that it's much worse than that."

"The men were mixing up some green fluids in a big pot-- the one we use to make the chili in. Then they poured them into several spray bottles, loaded them into the vehicle and drove over to the Environmental Services building."

It is painfully obvious what is going on between these two organizations. The chemicals are used to clean the bathrooms which all the students use on a daily basis. When the fumes from the chemicals begins to slow our metabolism, we start to eat less and less food, until we are content simply with a few slices of watermelon per day.

With students eating so little, bathrooms would be frequented considerably less and would therefore need less cleaning.

This is all part of NNU's plan to cut costs by eliminating the majority of Marriott and Environmental Services employees.

Body found under Chapman; Tennyson not surprised

by Jack and Jill
Inquisitor News Staff Writer

Construction work on the new track was halted last week when a body was found buried beneath where the south wing of Chapman rested. DNA and dental records confirm the body's identity as current senior Doyle Harris. This came somewhat as a surprise to Harris' current roommates and his fiancée, who is recovering in a remote area of Montana and will not be available for comment until later in this article.

Evidently, Harris was killed in a rumble between Main South and Monopoly North during his freshman year. The boys decided to bury the body rather than admit the crime. Computer genius Jonathon Goff was hired to create a robot to replace Harris and cover the boy's tracks.

Senior Ken Tennyson was overheard commenting, "It makes perfect sense! I mean, have you seen Doyle? Nobody could naturally be like that! I mean, come on!" Senior and fellow Broncos fan Sara Hamilton inquired, "Now who will I watch games with? Doyle was my Bronco-buddy."

Harris's fiancée senior Kelli Westmark has announced her intention to still be married to "Harris" this summer. "This robot is still the same man that I fell in love with. I'm marrying Doyle in July and I don't care who cares!"

The school is naturally shocked about this development in the building of the new track. Athletic directors Scott Armstrong and Darlene Brasch made a collective official statement of "Shoot."

The current plan is to continue work on the track and name the facility after the slaughtered student. That way the track season will not be interrupted and Heidi Allgeier will still be able to train for the Olympic Games in Sydney. The school has released the following statement:

"We are sorry for what happened, but what could we do about it? It's not as if anyone can control freshman guys anyway. As there are no large donors for the track as of yet, we will name it after Doyle Harris because he came to basketball games and was a Broncos fan. We think. It's hard to be sure now."

The Harris recognized today by students is a senior and will be graduating in May at the top of his class. Goff commented on his work, "When I build something, it's made well and made to last."

GYM 2B UPROOTED!

POTATOES TO BE GROWN IN GYM PARKING LOT

by John Fraley
Past Inquisitor Editor-in-Chief

Athletic Director Scott Armstrong has released to the press the news that the gym will be torn down and turned into a potato field before the start of volleyball season next year.

Athletes will be playing games and practicing at the Albertson Coyotes' gym in Caldwell while the volleyball and basketball sports programs will be gradually phased out. Armstrong was very enthusiastic about his dream.

"We are Christians and winning should not be important to us. The volleyball and basketball programs are the most successful, so obviously they have to go. As for the plans for the potato field, we are in Idaho, potato capitol of the world. This will fit in wonderfully with our new college of agriculture."

As expected there is a general outcry against this new development in the school's master plan. Kadee Wirick is reputed to having chained herself to the doors of the women's locker room in protest, while ***** has promised to swim laps in the pool to raise awareness among students. "The administration has to know that we LIKE to win and we are PROUD of winning and we won't let our gym go!"

Not all comments on Armstrong's dream are negative. Eli Effinger told The Inquisitor in an exclusive interview, "I think it's great! I've always wanted to be a farmer, but my parents would never let me. Now I can do that and concentrate on the important things in my life, like my girlfriend. Wait, is that going in the paper? Is it too late to take that part out?" (Mr. Effinger was informed that in interviews with The Inquisitor, all sales are final. Nothing is too private or ridiculous to be off the record.)

Demolition will begin on the gym after graduation so that monetary support from alumni will not be cut off until after school starts next year.

Schmidt a Yankee

Crusader recruited by Yankee's

by the Secret Service
Inquisitor Secret News Services

The entire campus community was rocked last week when long-time girls' basketball coach Roger Schmidt announced his retirement. Consider The Inquisitor's surprise at finding out that he has been recruited to play second base for the New York Yankee's.

The Inquisitor found out about Schmidt's super-secret contract through a leak in the Yankee organization who shall remain nameless to protect his privacy, although I will say that he looks A LOT like Craig Craker, long-time known Yankee fan.

The Yankees became interested in Schmidt after watching him throw his clipboard around at the national NAIA women's basketball tournament. "He shows all the grace and strength of pros," a scouting report stated. "Get this man to play on our team NOW!!"

Schmidt was originally a baseball player before converting to basketball. He showed some success in a minor league team in Tennessee, but was convinced by his wife to give up the sport for the sake of his children. His children are rumored to be ecstatic about his return to baseball. I imagine Toby saying something to the effect of, "Dad is finally going to get the chance to follow his dreams and I am finally going to get some autographs! Cool!"

Schmidt will be moving with his family to New York immediately following graduation. Students wishing to get some personal gain out of his good fortune should call Toby Schmidt in the admissions office for more details. He will be happy to help you.

Chess team rolls over Duke

As chants of "overrated" rolled through Denver at the annual National Championship of Chess, NNU's JohnMark Wood had pulled the upset to end all upsets. Wood and his partner Shawn Peterson destroyed the Russian transfer student Vlad Zcheckvesky of Duke. From start to finish Wood had things under control as he moved his castles, horses and pawns with premeditated mastery. Every time that Vlad and his brother Ivan went to move one of their horses they left themselves checked. Wood and Peterson won the match in a new world record time of 4 hours and 23 minutes.

In the second and final match, Brooke Humphrey showed a new style of chess, the cowboy style.

Using only her horses to kill her opponent's men, Brooke lassoed pawn after pawn until she had killed all 32. After decimating the pawns she moved onto the castles, the opponents horses, bishops, the queen and finally the king. Afterwards, Brooke led the crowd in a raucous chorus of "We are the Champions," the John Michael Montgomery version. Next week the team meets at the Cowboy Church.

Badminton team

As spring returns to our campus and students emerge from the dorms seeking the sun, there is a group of students who give up the glories of this beautiful weather and hole themselves away in a dark corner of the gym. These dedicated few are none other than the NNU badminton team.

After winning the national championship last year, the badminton team had thought they had reached the end. Said top server senior Travis Johns, "When you win the world championship, well that's it. Where do you go from there?" Sophomore outside defenseman Tim Schandorff is now wishing the question had never been asked as the team has received a challenge from the Jupiter championship badminton team and he, personally, gets airsick easily. Coach Emilio Estevez commented, "We've beaten ev-

The 'Saders go on win streak; on an unrelated note, the stars are aligned for disaster

by Neil Elder

Inquisitor News Guest Writer

The men's baseball team at NNU has finally recorded its first 10-game win streak in history. It started off with a 1-0 win over rival Albertson Coyotes and continued for nine more games and a 29-2 manslaughter of Western Oregon.

It all started behind a solid performance by catcher Josh Gray after hitting for a double cycle in the second game of the streak. Other positive performances in that game against Eastern Oregon came from Freshman Chris Uhl, who recorded his fourteenth career save in his fifteenth appearance, a team record.

"We were forced to take him out so his attitude would not effect the rest of the team."

In game four, a road victory over Western Baptist, Zack

Deboi, one of two seniors on the team, pitched a complete game shut-out, stiking out 24 of 30 batters faced, giving up only two hits and one walk. Also hitting for himself that game, he went 5-6 at the plate, with three homeruns.

Games five, six and seven were all close and went into the sixth inning before NNU could take command. Going into the sixth inning of each game, the Crusaders only led by seven. It was in the seventh that they were finally able to pull away from Western Baptist and Concordia and put up leads of ten and 12 runs.

During those three games, the only let-down was Benji Warren's poor attitude. He was forced off the field for excessive crying over a called first strike during his first at-bat of the seventh game. "That called strike just plain ruined his mentality at the plate. He had been hitting the first pitch during his run of 13 for 13 everyone on this planet, now it's time to go universal!"

Other team members did not share Estevez's enthusiasm. Senior Dave Stillman complained, "Who does he think we are? The Mighty Ducks?" Senior Chrissy Mizar added, "They have multiple arms and are HUGE!!! I mean, how do you practice to play against aliens?! And what if they decide to take over the planet after the match? Has anyone looked into this?"

The big game is scheduled to be played at 17:30 UST (Universe Standard Time) in a space ship that is currently orbiting the planet Earth. All students who wish to attend the game will receive a free shuttle (no pun intended) ride funded by our student fees. Talk to Carey Cook or other members of SGA for details.

in the past seven games. We [the coaching staff] were forced to take him out so his attitude would not effect the rest of the team," said head coach Brian Muir.

The team got help from Freshman spot starter Jonathan McCoy in game nine. He threw the second game of a double-header against Southern Oregon. For the record, it was not only the team's first no-hitter in history, but the team's first perfect game in history. "We got great outing today from McCoy," said pitching coach Tim Onofrei. "We felt he could handle the pressure after Freshman starter Matt Guthrie went down with a sore elbow yesterday during pre-game activities. It was just a great morale boost for our team. We now have confidence in our entire pitching staff for the World Series this year."

During this ten-game winning streak, the 'Saders swept two teams and lost the front end of the Albertson series before their tear. "It's been a long time since I've seen a team play this well," said Senior Justin Schneidt. After a streak like this in which they beat their opponents by an average margin of 15.78 runs, it could be hard for it to be matched ever again. GOOD LUCK 'SADERS IN THE WORLD SERIES!!

RIGHT WING

W I L D O M

By Pat Robertson

Crusader Guest Opinions Writer

The presidential election is coming up, and we're faced yet again with two unfortunate choices. We have George W. Bush, the loveable but inexperienced young governor of Texas. And behind door #2, we have the Antichrist Al Gore.

Now I realize that eight years ago, I labeled Bill Clinton as the Antichrist, but after consulting the Bible part two (Hal Lindsay's The Late Great Planet Earth), I came to the realization that Clinton was merely a demon, and Gore is the true devil in human form.

Last night God (Jerry Falwell) spoke to me. He told me that the best candidate for the presidency is Pat Buchanan.

Are you longing for the days of genocide and the ruling of the master race? Is white your favorite color? Are you tired of defending John Rocker? Do you have at least three fingers? If you answered yes to any of these questions, then Buchanan is your obvious choice for the President of the United States.

Buchanan is a man with a vision. He has ideas. He's pro-family. He looks good in a blue suit. These are important qualities. I've seen George W. Bush in a blue

Gay rights: Buchanan says, "All gays, lesbians and bisexuals suit, and he doesn't hold a candle to the radiance Buchanan has when he's strutting his conservative self over the dead bodies of abortion doctors. Here's an indepth look at Buchanan and where he stands on the issues.

"Let's keep American money where it belongs: in the fanny packs of slightly overweight white people."

Gun control: Guns should be made available to all people regardless of their taste in music or favorite color. However all fe-have the same rights as straight people. The first right they have is to a one-way ticket for a trip to Antarctica. If they refuse this right, they then have the right to dodge the bullets from my AK-47. That about sums up the rights that these abominations people have.

The Death Penalty: George W. Bush is on the right track, but Buchanan won't be so lenient on criminals. Since the last election, Buchanan has been doing his homework. He's been reading books on capital punishment. Some of these instant classics include: Beheadings Made Easy, 101 Ways to Boil a Minority in Oil and Public Executions - Reagan Style.

Foreign Policy: Buchanan has an opinion on this issue as well. Here's what he said at a recent media event: "What's with all this money we're spending on these foreigners. Are we Americans or are we Democrats? We need to stop giving all this good money to people overseas. Let's keep American money where it belongs: in the fanny packs of slightly overweight white people."

Abortion: Abortion doctors are only one step above Al Gore. They should be shot on sight.

In closing, Buchanan is the only good choice to run this country. If you don't think so, read this article again. If you still don't think so, reread the article again. If you still don't think Buchanan is the man for the job, you must be gay. You can pick up your cruise line ticket for Antarctica at the closest Focus on the Family office.

from Dr. Hagood

Dr. Hagood,

I'm 21 and getting ready to graduate from NNU. I'm still not married yet, or even dating. What's your suggestion on how to catch me a husband before I get out of this place and into the real world? I don't know that I could be a complete, confident person without that special someone holding my hand and standing by my side. Please let me know ASAP as there are only six weeks left in the term.

Love,
Sickly single in Nampa

Sickly,

Don't fret, I've known many young ladies in your circumstance who found themselves at the altar with much less time to "catch them a husband" than you have. My suggestion is to move your stuff to Ford Hall, change your name, and pretend to be a young freshman girl looking for a senior ministerial student. That's the most 100%, sure-fire way to get yourself hitched before the big day.

Love,
Dr. Hagood

Dr. Hagood,

I recently dumped my girlfriend of five years for a young lady I met at a dance club just last Friday. She dumped me just this past Sunday, and I was wondering how I should go about getting my first girlfriend back. Especially since she is now engaged to a senior ministerial student. I think I may have made a mistake, what do you think?

Love,
Sorry in Nampa

Sorry,

Goodness gracious, what a mess you have made. You were on your way to being a successful graduate of this institution, and now look at the predicament you're in. My recommendation is that you give up on your former girlfriend, change your name, and become a senior ministerial student.

Love,
Dr. Hagood

Dr. Hagood,

I need to ask the girl of my dreams on a date. How should I do it?

Nervous in Nampa

Nervous,

This is a very important step you are about to take. This girl could be your wife, after all. My suggestion is that you tell this girl that she has a beautiful spirit, and you would like to start praying with her. Then, when she trusts you with her life, pull out the ring and pop the big question.

Then, just to guarantee a "yes," tell her that you are planning to become a senior ministerial student.

Works every time.

Love,
Dr. Hagood

Dr. Richard Hagood is the president of Northwest Nazarene University, and is currently looking to implement a "Marry or you're outta here" policy as the school moves to NCAA status. All questions may be directed to his office via e-mail.
